What to know about banking in Jersey

Which banks serve whom

Not every bank here takes everyday customers. This is what their own websites say:

- Personal accounts or savings: Barclays, HSBC, Lloyds, Santander International and Butterfield.
- Private or international clients: UBS, Union Bancaire Privée and Standard Chartered. Standard Bank is aimed at people with links to Africa, and its personal page says accounts are held in the Isle of Man.
- Institutions and funds: RBS International, which sends everyday customers to NatWest International.

How your money is protected

The Jersey Bank Depositors Compensation Scheme protects up to £50,000 per eligible depositor, per banking group, including interest. So banks in the same group share one limit, and a joint account for two people is protected up to £100,000.

The scheme aims to send a cheque within 7 working days, and most people are paid automatically. Payment isn't guaranteed, as it depends on funding, and it could be reduced and topped up later. A review, including the limit, is under way, so check the figure if it matters to you.

A UK name doesn't mean UK protection

The UK's Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) doesn't cover money held in Jersey. HSBC and Santander International both say deposits in their Channel Islands accounts fall outside it. So the same bank can offer different protection, depending on where your account is held.

Business accounts

Company, trust and partnership accounts aren't covered by the deposit scheme, while Jersey registered charities are. Sole traders are covered, but their trading and personal balances are added together. Each bank sets its own rules for opening an account, and must check who you are and what your business does. We found no official guide, so ask the bank what it needs. Our guide to the steps for starting a business in Jersey covers what else to set up.

Check a bank is real

The Jersey Financial Services Commission regulates deposit-taking, and registered banks must say they're regulated. It also warns about fake banks that use a real name. If an offer looks wrong, check with the Commission first.

Making a complaint

Complain to the bank first. If you're not happy after up to three months, you can go to the Channel Islands Financial Ombudsman, which is free for customers.

Branches

Branches have been closing. The Jersey Evening Post reported in 2024 that Lloyds was due to close St Brelade, after closing St Saviour in 2022. We found no official list, so check with the bank before you travel.

Listings are free and in alphabetical order. Jersey Web is not connected with these businesses unless a listing says so: check details with each business before you book. Guidance checked 4 November 2026.
