Hiring a gardener in Jersey

Jersey has its own rules on hedges, trees and garden waste, and several of them catch out people used to the UK. These are the ones to know.

The branchage

Under the Loi \(1914\) sur la Voirie, whoever occupies land next to a public road or footpath must cut back anything growing over it, leaving 12 feet clear above roads and 8 feet above footpaths. That duty falls on the occupier, so a tenant rather than the landlord.

Each parish inspects twice a year, in the three weeks from 24 June and the three weeks from 1 September, with the dates published in the Jersey Gazette. A missed branchage can mean a penalty of up to £100 for each problem, and the Government of Jersey points out you can be fined at any time of year. If a gardener does yours, agree the dates well before the inspection.

Protected trees

Jersey doesn't have the UK's Tree Preservation Orders. Instead it keeps a List of Protected Trees, and any work to a protected tree needs the Minister's permission. A dead, dying or dangerous tree can be dealt with straight away, but Planning must be told as soon as possible. Some other trees are protected by planning conditions, so check before anything is felled.

Removing a hedgerow, banque or other feature that marks a boundary counts as development under the Planning and Building \(Jersey\) Law 2002, and needs permission.

Nesting birds

The Wildlife (Jersey) Law 2021 protects wild birds, their nests and their eggs. The Government of Jersey advises leaving pruning, felling and trimming until after the breeding season, which generally runs from March to September. Swallow and house martin nests are protected all year round.

Where the garden waste goes

Householders can take garden waste to the household green waste reception at La Collette, but commercial vehicles aren't allowed there. Gardeners working for customers use the commercial green waste reception, which charges by the tonne, so ask whether a quote includes taking the waste away.

A gardener doesn't need to be registered as a waste carrier to move green waste. In Jersey that registration covers hazardous and healthcare waste.

Weedkillers and pesticides

Under Jersey's pesticides rules, anyone using a professional pesticide as a paid service needs a certificate of competence, or must work under the direct supervision of someone who holds one. If your gardener will be spraying, ask whether they hold one.

Fences, walls and patios

You don't usually need planning permission for a fence, wall or gate in your garden up to 900mm high within 2 metres of a road, or up to 2 metres high elsewhere, as long as the property isn't listed and a planning condition hasn't removed the right. Patios, decks and raised beds are fine up to 40cm above or below the ground. A retaining wall holding back more than a metre needs building permission.
