Fees, funding and what to check

Free hours for 3 and 4 year olds

The Nursery Education Fund gives up to 30 free hours a week, for 38 term-time weeks, in the school year your child turns 4. You only pay for hours above that. Children born between 1 September 2022 and 31 August 2023 can get it from September 2026 to August 2027.

You can use it at a school nursery or a private nursery registered for the fund, but not with a childminder.

Funding for 2 and 3 year olds

The Childcare Funding Scheme pays up to £6,445 per child in the school year they turn 3. For 2026-27, that means children born between 1 September 2023 and 31 August 2024. It doesn't depend on your income, your job or your residential status.

You pay for childcare first and then claim the money back, with receipts, by 31 August. You can use a registered private nursery, a registered childminder or an accredited nanny.

It isn't a set number of free hours. It's a capped refund, so the hours it buys depend on your provider's fees, and it's worth comparing them. You can't also claim childcare tax relief on the same money. If you're on Income Support, ask them first.

If you're struggling with the cost

The Jersey Child Care Trust runs the Every Step programme for families facing financial difficulty, which replaced Best Start Plus. It can also pay the funding above directly to your provider if you can't pay up front. Contact the Trust to ask what's available.

What nurseries charge

Few nurseries publish their fees, and these aren't like for like, so ask what's included:

- Busy Bees Castle Quay, from October 2026: £405 to £498.50 a full week, or £94 to £113 a full day, depending on age. Meals are included, and fees are charged for 52 weeks.
- Acrewood: a full day is £88.96 for under-3s and £78.23 for over-3s not on funded hours. The prices aren't dated.
- Westmount, from 1 September 2025: £9.31 an hour from age 2 and £8.51 from age 3, plus £3.08 a day for lunch, with a 4-hour minimum.

How nurseries are checked

Anyone caring for under-12s for reward for over 2 hours a day, or over 6 days a year, must usually register under the Day Care of Children (Jersey) Law 2002, and must display their certificate. The Childcare and Early Years Service handles this.

We couldn't find published inspection reports for individual nurseries. Ask to see the certificate, and ask the nursery about its last review. You can also contact the service on 01534 449387.

Finding a place

Our list isn't complete. gov.je has a list of registered childcare providers, and the Jersey Child Care Trust has a list of day nurseries too.

Listings are free and in alphabetical order. Jersey Web is not connected with these businesses unless a listing says so: check details with each business before you book. Guidance checked 4 November 2026.
