How to choose a plumber in Jersey

Jersey has its own rules for gas, oil and heating work, and plenty of what you read online about UK regulations doesn't apply here. These are the checks that do.

Gas work needs a Gas Safe engineer

Jersey doesn't use the UK's gas regulations, but the Health and Safety Inspectorate says the legal requirements for gas work are the same in Jersey: anyone working on gas appliances must be on the Gas Safe Register.

Ask to see the engineer's Gas Safe ID card and check the licence number on the Gas Safe Register website. If you smell gas, call Island Energy's emergency line on 01534 755555.

Oil boilers and tanks: look for OFTEC

An OFTEC-registered installer can fit an oil boiler and notify the building department for you. If your installer isn't registered with OFTEC or Gas Safe, you have to make a building application yourself.

The Government of Jersey also advises using an OFTEC technician to install or decommission an oil tank, because a leaking tank can pollute water supplies.

New boilers, heat pumps and cylinders need sign-off

A new boiler, heat pump or unvented hot water cylinder needs building permission under Jersey's Building Bye-laws, unless the installer belongs to an approved competent person scheme. The scheme then notifies the department within 30 days of the work being finished. Either way, ask for the certificate at the end and keep it with your house papers.

The heat pump grant

The Government of Jersey's Low Carbon Heating Incentive pays up to £9,000 in match funding towards an air source heat pump that replaces an oil or gas system, or up to £15,000 for low-income households. Other low-carbon heating, such as electric flow boilers and storage heaters, can get up to £4,000. Funding is available until 2030.

You apply through a contractor approved under Jersey's Contractor Quality Scheme, before you accept a quote, and the property needs a valid Jersey energy performance certificate. The UK's Boiler Upgrade Scheme doesn't apply in Jersey.

Quotes, call-out charges and your rights

Jersey Trading Standards points out that a quotation is a fixed price and legally binding, while an estimate is only an informed guess. Ask whether the quote is free, what the minimum call-out charge is, and get the price in writing before work starts.

Under the Supply of Goods and Services \(Jersey\) Law 2009, a trader must do the work with reasonable care and skill. If something goes wrong, the free Consumer Advice Service can help on 01534 448160.

Jersey Water doesn't recommend plumbers

Jersey Water doesn't run an approved plumber scheme and can't recommend one, so treat any "approved by Jersey Water" claim with care. For a new mains connection, its inspectors check the plumbing before the water goes on.

Listings are free and in alphabetical order. Jersey Web is not connected with these businesses unless a listing says so: check details with each business before you book. Guidance checked 1 October 2026.
