How to check and choose a trust company in Jersey

Trust company business has to be registered

Under the Financial Services (Jersey) Law 1998, trust company business is a regulated financial service. It covers forming companies, foundations, partnerships and LLCs, providing directors, company secretaries or a registered office, acting as trustee of an express trust, and acting as a nominee shareholder.

Carrying it on in or from Jersey without being registered with the Jersey Financial Services Commission (JFSC) is an offence. Some arrangements, such as certain private trust companies, are exempt.

Check a firm on the JFSC register

Search the JFSC's register of regulated entities and filter by "Trust company" or "Fund services". Results show the firm's name and its licences and reference numbers.

The JFSC Registry's company search is different: it shows that a company exists, not that it is regulated.

Watch for firms pretending to be regulated

The JFSC publishes statements about businesses impersonating real firms. Its advice is not to act straight away on unexpected calls, messages or emails, to contact the firm using its official details, and to check the register. If you think you have been targeted, the JFSC's fraud page says to contact the States of Jersey Police on 01534 612612.

What a trust company must tell you

The JFSC's Code of Practice for trust company business says a firm must:

- agree and document how its fees are worked out before it takes on an appointment
- disclose all its fees and charges, including commissions and payments to or from third parties, and say whether fees paid in advance are refundable
- give you written terms of business in plain language, separate from marketing material, before the service starts or as early as it can
- tell you how to complain, and acknowledge a complaint in writing within five business days

Trust companies and fund administrators are different

The JFSC registers trust company business and fund services business separately. Trust company business is about companies, trusts, foundations and partnerships. Fund services business means acting for a fund, for example as its administrator, manager, registrar, custodian or investment adviser. Many firms listed here do both, so check which services each is registered for.

Making a complaint

Complain to the firm in writing first, as the JFSC advises. The Channel Islands Financial Ombudsman (CIFO) is free, but it says trust business itself is outside its jurisdiction. It can look at investment or pension business done for a trust, and at complaints about the managers and other functionaries of recognised funds.

Industry bodies

The Jersey Association of Trust Companies (JATCo) represents most of the island's trust companies, and its members must be JFSC-regulated. Jersey Finance promotes Jersey as a finance centre. Neither is a regulator, and membership is not a legal requirement.

Listings are free and in alphabetical order. Jersey Web is not connected with these businesses unless a listing says so: check details with each business before you book. Guidance checked 14 November 2026.
